HOUSE FIGHT LOOMS

it will have a bearing on the speaker-fight there appears no question.

The fact the Murray Gibbons has been on the ground organizing his forces for several weeks, and that he claims to have secured the promise of support from a majority of the democratic members, has naturally been followed by the gossip that he has attained his present commanding position largely through promise of committee places. This Gibbons vigorously denies. In a statement today he said:

"The propaganda which has been sent on the rounds of the press, to the effect that I have promised committee chairmanships and assignments by the wholesale is entirely false. I have made no such a campaign and when I take the speakership it will be with fewer promises of any kind than have been made by any predecessors, as far as I can learn. My support comes to me without such promises. Neither am I pledged to a set program of legislation, which is being charged by those who are opposing me. My idea of committee appointments is, that they should go to those who are best fitted, in each case, to fill the position. I have assurances from a sufficient number of members to control the caucus which my supporters are calling for Monday night, January 1."
